RESEARCH INTERESTS

I study innovation and creativity in Classical Athens through social networks. My research involves the application of Social Network Analysis methodology to the social history of ancient Greece, including the social networks of Pericles, Socrates, Philip II, and Alexander the Great. By uncovering the secrets to their remarkable discoveries, innovations, and inventions, I hope to make suggestions on how to make our own communities more creative.

TEACHING INTERESTS

Greek and Roman History, Greek and Roman Archaeology, Greek Drama, the Athenian Democracy and Empire, Alexander the Great, Digital Humanities, Teaching with Technology, Social Network Analysis.

ADMINISTRATION AND SERVICE INTERESTS

Faculty Development and Strategic Planning, Interdisciplinary Studies, Cross-Disciplinary Collaboration, Innovation and Creativity, Complexity Theory and Complex Problem-Solving, Organizational Development, Transdisciplinary Participative Action Research, Design Thinking, Engaged Humanities, the Engaged University.
